Dr. James comes forward with a clipping about a merchant in a small western town and his jobber. The jobber sent a shipment of goods which was refused, so goes the story. The jobber threatened suit and wrote to the station agent to verify receipt of goods, the banker to find credit standing of merchant, the mayor of the town to inquire as to a good lawyer to represent him. One letter came back . . . and from the merchant. It said, "I am the railroad agent here and got your letter. I am also the president and owner of the only bank here and got your letter about my credit. And since I am also the mayor of the town, I hesitate to recommend a lawyer for you, since I am the only lawyer in town. And if I were not pastor of the only church in town, I'd tell you to go to H. . . ."

This is the first summer I can remember when I haven't been pestered with mosquitoes. And whatta relief. Oh, oi. Us young bloods used to drape our cars in mosquito netting when we wanted to be clever. But here in Piedmont Virginia, there's virtually no such critter.

Having thusly written, we mop the maudlin drops or perspiration from this typing machine and set this another column aside. Selah.

SOLVING THE ICE PROBLEM

PEOPLE think we just have an old-fashioned ice-box, but that's only because they're not up on modern methods. This business of making your own ice is silly and uneconomic. Years ago we gave up making our own clothes, baking our own bread and paying our own debts. Why should we retrogress at this stage of the game and make our own ice?

Truly the refrigerator that turns out little home-made cubes can not last. In fact, it is already going. We have this new ice-box. We have our ice delivered by own home firm. Ready made ice. Instead of making in in small pieces we get it in one big chunk, save it and chop it up as we need it. It seems to me that's the future solution of our ice problem.

"And I Like It" Says Editor In Texas

Depression Has No Fears For Man Who Sees Good Points

We like the depression. We have come down off our pedestal and are really living at my house now. The twin beds are stored in the garage and the old family affair is is being used. We are enjoying life. Instead of, taking a hot water bottle to bed these cold nights, she sticks her heels in my back just like she did before Hoover was elected.

I haven't been out on a par- in 18 months. I have lost my book of telephone numbers. My wife has dropped all the clubs. I believe we are calling in love all over again. I am pretty well satisfied with [illegible]. I will keep her, at least until fall is forte and then if I feel like I do now, I may trade her for two wenties.

I am feeling better since the depression. I take more exercise. I walk to town and a lot of folks who used to drive Cadillacs are walking with me. I like the depression.

My digestion is better. I haven't been to see a doctor in a year. I can eat anything I want to.

I am getting real honest-to-goodness food. Three years ago, we had filet mignon once a week, now we have round steak and flour gravy. Then, we had roast breast of guinea hen, now we are glad to get now-bosom with the buttons on it.

I like the depression. My salary has been cut to where I can't afford to buy lettuce and spinach and parsley and we can't afford to have sandwiches and frozen desserts and all that damfoolishness which has killed more good men than the World War.

I like the depression. Three years ago, I never had time to go to church. I played golf all day Sunday and besides I was so darned smart that there wasn't a preacher in West Texas who could tell me anything.

Now I am going to church regularly, never miss a Sunday.

And if this depression keeps on, I will be going to prayer meeting before long.

I like the depression.

A revival is being held at Salem church this week.
